Thoughts from the President . . . .

Our first ever "September Picnic" Quarterly meeting is now history. It wasn't as successful as I had anticipated, attendance wise, but it was successful so far as everyone having a good time and "gorging" themselves on loads of good food!

There were some very nice items of Cambridge glass exchanging hands at the Swap Meet. There were even some very nice Cambridge pieces being used to eat on! You know, us poor folk just brought plain old paper plates for our picnic lunch, but as always there had to be one show-off in the crowd!

Well, Joe Andrejczak said, "If you've got it, flaunt it!" and that is just exactly what he and his son Patrick did. They covered their table with a linen tablecloth, and proceeded to cover it with plates, goblets, candlesticks, and other assorted pieces, all covered with (you guessed it) Rosepoint etching! They even lit the candles . . . and actually ate off of the plates!! Now, that would make any old burnt hamburger taste good, wouldn't it? I kept waiting for Joe to dispose of their plates the same way we did, but do you know . . . he wrapped them up, crumbs and all, and took them home for his wife Karen to wash!

You can all look forward to the same type Quarterly meeting next year. We hope to do a little improving on the land behind the MUSEUM so we can hold our "September Picnic" there next year.

Speaking of the MUSEUM, things are coming along quite well on the new addition. All of the exterior construction should be completed in the next few days, weather permitting (I'm writing this on October 5th). It is hard to believe that two men, with helpers on one day, could change the looks of the building so drastically in only two weeks.

We met with the electric company representative, and the heating and air conditioning contractor, last week. As soon as the electric company completes the plans for the new service, and changes it over (we are going with underground service for various reasons), we can get the heat pump and air conditioning completed.

By the time the MUSEUM closes on November 1st, for the season, we should be finished with everything except the interior. We will work on that during the cold winter weekends. I hope we can get some pictures in one of the issues of the CRYSTAL BALL so that you can see what the original building looked like, what the first improvements did for it, and now, what these present changes are doing to improve its looks!

I believe these pictures will be especially interesting to you who have not had the opportunity to visit in the area. The government always wants you to see where your tax dollars are going (or do they?) . . . well, we DO want you to see where your MUSEUM dollars are being spent! With your dollars, and the faith you have shown in this organization, we can all be proud of this accomplishment.

If you want to get a jump on everyone and see what the NEW MUSEUM looks like, just come to Cambridge on November 5th for the November Quarterly meeting. By the time you receive this issue of the CRYSTAL BALL the deadline for dinner reservations will be past. However, you don't need reservations to attend the Quarterly meeting (it begins at approximately 8 p.m.).

So, if you haven't made reservations for dinner, come anyway. Enjoy our guest speaker, BERNARD BOYD; the Mini-Auction (don't forget your glass); and "Show & Tell."

SEE YOU NOVEMBER 5TH! . . . . .WILLARD

WHOOOPS!

Sorry about that . . . . .

Just in case any one noticed and wondered what we were talking about in our "We Get Letters" column last issue . . . let me take this opportunity to "fess-up" and admit that I gave the printer the wrong photo to use with the article.

On page 3, the photo in the upper right hand corner should not have been there, and the one shown here . . . should have been there!

THE CAMBRIDGE GIRLS

Martha, Marjorie, Minerva

by MARK NYE

This month, a trio of Cambridge Girls, the "3Ms" are being featured. Two members of this trio were "born" during the Near Cut era, and the third, (somewhat of a youngster), arrived in the mid 1930s.

Minerva, the youngest of the "3Ms," first appeared in the NCC 1930-34 Cambridge Catalog reprint on page 33-1, thus dating its introduction to the beginning of 1933. The Welkers, in their Book II of catalog reprints, show a page from a Cambridge advertising folder that illustrates Minerva along with five other etchings, including Rosepoint. Based on the appearance of Rosepoint, the earliest date we can apply to this folder is 1935. (Rosepoint was introduced in 1935.) Minerva does not appear in the 1940 or later Cambridge Glass Company catalogs and price lists. However there is company research in existence that proves Minerva, as well as its companion etching Valencia, was still very much available as late as September of 1939.

Three stemware lines are known to have been etched Minerva, and it is possible that there were others. The known lines are: #3124;

TALLY-HO ETCHED MINERVA

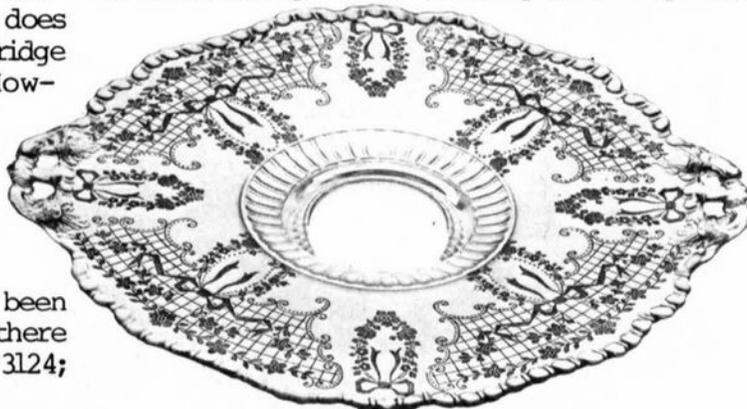

#1402/100 Tally-Ho blown stemware; and #3500 Gadroon.

Use of this etching was not limited to stemware. Unfortunately, very few pieces showing the Minerva etching are illustrated in the NCC 1930-34 Catalog reprint. Gadroon and Tally-Ho sandwich plates are shown, as is the Tally-Ho three piece buffet or Sunday evening supper set. Also pictured are Tally-Ho and Gadroon stemware items. Company research has been found that proves Minerva, as well as Valencia, was used extensively on three lines: #3400; #3500 Gadroon; and Tally-Ho.

A complete dinnerware service using #3400 line blanks was produced, including both the round and square plates. In addition, many serving and accessory pieces were also etched Minerva. As a matter of fact, many of the #3400 line items described in my previous article on "Diane" are to be found etched Minerva. There are, for example: four different sets of salt and pepper shakers; oil bottles; five pitchers, including the #3400/152 Doulton jug; and decanter sets . . . all etched Minerva.

There is no lack of #3500 Gadroon line etched Minerva, except for a dinner plate. Cups and saucers, cream soups and saucers, fruit and cereal bowls, sugars and creamers, bowls, trays, relishes (17 of these, as a matter of fact), covered candy boxes, covered urns, ash trays, and mayonnaise sets, are all listed as being etched Minerva. Last, but not least, is the Minerva etched #3500/25 9" Rams Head bowl, and the #3500/119 13" Tom & Jerry bowl.

Minerva on Tally-Ho blanks include: bread and butter plates; two sizes of salad plates; 9 1/2" dinner; and 10 1/2" service plate; twin salad dressing bowls, and sets incorporating these bowls; cheese and cracker sets; and nine bowls, relishes, and comports were also done. Rounding out the Tally-Ho line with the Minerva etching were: six flat tumblers, ranging in size from 2 1/2 oz. to 15 oz.; the #1402/78 6 oz. punch mug; and to go with the mug, the #1402/77 13" footed punch bowl.

All of the preceding utilize crystal blanks. I was unable to find any reference to Minerva on colored blanks, nor have I seen any. I have seen a vase in forest green etched Valencia, and it is possible that similar pieces were also produced with the Minerva etch. It is doubtful that dinnerware was made on colored blanks.

DECANTER & SHERRY
D/1015

In the NCC 1930-34 Catalog reprint we find pages dating to 1934 which illustrate decoration D/1015, gold encrusted Minerva on crown tuscan. Shown are: the #3500/64 three compartment, two handled relish; #3500/12 12" handled and footed oval bowl; #3121 28 oz. footed decanter; and the #7966 2 oz. sherry.

The #3500/21 bowl, with the gold encrusted Minerva on the interior surfaces, also has an exterior gold encrusted pattern. This same decoration is to be seen on other crown tuscan pieces, again as a secondary design.

Gold encrusted Minerva is also found on crystal blanks. Unfortunately there are no price lists or catalog listings available, from this era, to provide an exact listing of blanks decorated in this manner. Serving and accessory pieces, as well as salad plates have been seen by this writer, and it is entirely possible that cups, saucers, and stemware items were done. A recently seen piece was the #3500/41 10" Urn or Candy jar in crystal with the gold encrusted Minerva etching.

Minerva and Valencia are somewhat similar in design and confusion may arise when trying to distinguish between the two without the aid of a catalog reprint. I have found a way to quickly answer the question "which is it?" All of the lines in Valencia meet at right angles and run vertical and horizontal, while the lines in Minerva are on a slant and do not meet at right angles. My system is "V" for "Valencia" and "V" for "vertical lines." This may not work for everyone, but it has for me.

Martha, the second in our trio, is shown in Welkers Book I of Cambridge catalog reprints. These illustrations are on pages from a catalog bearing the "Near Cut" trademark (circa 1922), and on pages that appear to date to 1928 or 1929.

Martha also appears, to a very limited extent, in the NCC 1930-34 Catalog reprint.

For your information, we are reprinting a page from the Near Cut era catalog, showing many of the items produced with the Martha etching. Reprinted below is a listing from an old old price list which indicates the pieces that were being produced with the Martha etch. This price list is for use with the Cambridge Glass Company catalog No. 10, dating to circa 1922. Sometime during the 1920s, Martha was also etched onto the #7606 stem line.

The later catalog pages reprinted by the Welkers show this etching on another jug, the #956, and on the #787 9 1/2" vase. The sole reference to the Martha etching found in the NCC 1930-34 Catalog reprint (page 50), shows the #797 8" vase.

In the November 1976 issue of the CRYSTAL BALL, a January 1933 advertisement showing a grape etching on the Tally-Ho #1402/38 decanter was reprinted. This has been identified as Martha, but I feel it is more likely the Catawba etching, another of the "most confusing" Cambridge grape etchings. However, the picture is not really distinct enough to make a definitive statement as to the identity of the etching.

Martha does not appear in the Cambridge Glass Company catalog dated January 1, 1940, or subsequent catalog additions and price lists. The most likely date for the discontinuance of this etching is sometime in the early 1930s, and it would appear that toward the end, very limited use was made of Martha.

Marjorie, the final member of the "3Ms", is by no means the least significant member of our group. In its time, Marjorie was undoubtedly a very important plate etching for a young and growing Cambridge Glass Company. Unfortunately, very little has as yet been learned about Marjorie, or for that matter, many of the early etchings.

One must remember when discussing Marjorie, to distinguish between the plate etching and the pressed Near Cut pattern of the same name. Our subject here is, of course, the etching.

The only definite date established as to when Marjorie was first produced, is May 1922. An advertisement from a trade publication of that date pictures the Marjorie etching on a goblet. A Near Cut era catalog, possibly dating to 1921, had at least three pages of Marjorie illustrations. Two of these pages were reprinted in the June 1978 issue of the CRYSTAL BALL, and the third page was reprinted by the Welkers in their Book I of Cambridge catalog reprints.

In the NCC 1930-34 Catalog reprint (page 33-19), the #1307 Candelabrum and the #1349 12" bowl are both shown with an etching stated as being E/764. This etching appears to be very similar, if not identical, to Marjorie. If this is in fact Marjorie, this is the only reference we have found for this etching, dating after 1930.

Marjorie was etched onto two very similar stemware lines: #7606; and #3223. They are so similar, the average collector will have difficulty in identification unless they are seen side by side, and the person is aware of the two lines. Both have similar bowl shapes and pulled stems. However, the diameter of the #3223 stem is slightly larger and shorter than the #7606 used on a bowl of identical capacity. The bowls themselves appear to be so identical, or nearly so, that any difference cannot be ascertained from a catalog page illustration.

Rather than go into a lengthy description of the items produced with the Marjorie etching, accompanying this article is a reprint of the listing for this pattern in the price list for the Cambridge Glass Company catalog No. 10, dating circa 1922.

Marjorie may have evolved from an early etching, known thru an advertisement in the February 1, 1915 issue of "China, Glass & Lamps." This ad was reprinted in the June 1975 issue of the CRYSTAL BALL, and shows an etching similar to Marjorie, but having less detail. While the reprint is indistinct, it appears the plates used to produce this etching could very well have been reworked into Marjorie, as the basic Marjorie design appears to be present in the older etching. It is also possible this earlier etching is in fact Marjorie and was gradually modified into the design now known.

While most Marjorie being found today is on crystal blanks, a few pieces are known on both light green and pink blanks. A couple of stemmed items are in the NCC Museum in the light green color, and a creamer and sugar in pink will be pictured in the NCC Color book when it is published. Undoubtedly, additional pieces will be found, and reported.

While not found in abundance today, a sufficient quantity of Marjorie etched pieces, primarily stemware, do appear to indicate a somewhat extensive production during the early to mid 1920s. Either that, or those who purchased Marjorie treasured it dearly, took extremely good care of their crystal, and passed their sets on to later generations. I say this since I have seen more Marjorie than the Minerva, which was introduced some twelve to fifteen years later. Of the three etchings discussed here, Martha is the least frequently seen pattern.

MUSEUM BIRTHDAY GIFTS

Many of you have inquired as to what we received in the way of "Birthday" gifts during this past Convention. It is our intention to run a list of items received, in the CRYSTAL BALL, just as soon as space permits. Hopefully in the December issue! We apologize for the delay in doing so. . . . . EDITOR
